

Ethics News – July 19, 2018

The Canadian Centre for Ethics & Corporate Policy (“Ethics Centre”) is pleased to provide you by email, on a regular basis, with timely articles from a variety of sources, on ethical issues currently affecting organizations.

In this month’s first article, from The Globe and Mail, EU regulators hit Google with record 4.34 billion euros antitrust fine for using its Android mobile operating system to squeeze out rivals.

Access the article at <https://www.theglobeandmail.com/business/article-google-said-to-be-fined-record-5-billion-by-eu-over-android-2/>

In our second article, from the Harvard Business Review, a study used sensors to show that men and women are treated differently at work.

Access the article at <https://hbr.org/2017/10/a-study-used-sensors-to-show-that-men-and-women-are-treated-differently-at-work>

In our third article, from the Guardian, Microsoft calls for facial recognition technology rules given “potential for abuse”, warning authorities might track, investigate or arrest people based on flawed evidence.

Access the article at <https://amp.theguardian.com/technology/2018/jul/14/microsoft-facial-recognition-technology-rules-potential-for-abuse>

In our final article, written by Sydney Lazarus, Deloitte’s 2018 Millennial Survey finds that young professionals across the globe are unsure about their ability to adapt to Industry 4.0 technologies and are increasingly critical of business ethics.

Access the article at <https://spendmatters.com/2018/07/16/deloittes-2018-millennial-survey-industry-4-0-employer-loyalty-and-business-ethics/>

ETHICS CENTRE is a uniquely Canadian, independent body, dedicated to promoting and maintaining an ethical orientation and culture in Canadian organizations. We champion the application of ethical values in the decision -making processes of business and other organizations.

We welcome your comments – which can be directed to Lois Marsh at lmars@ethicscentre.ca

In particular, we would welcome suggestions for subjects of interest to you.

May we also encourage you, if you are not already a member of Ethics Centre, to consider joining us.

A New Member application can be accessed on our Website at “The Canadian Centre for Ethics & Corporate Policy”.